plane crash aftermath

Nine people are dead and several injured after the worst plane crash in Detroit Metropolitan Airport history occurred in Romulus last week.

Officials were quick to point out that within minutes either way of the 2:34 p.m. crash landing of Northwest commuter flight 2268, hundreds of other lives on two other passenger flights as well as hundreds more waiting inside the terminal 15 feet away were endangered.

Twenty minutes before, in the exact location, a DC-10 with several hundred passengers boarded and a DC-9 was re-routed from that spot 10 minutes after the crash.

According to Richard Jami- (See CRASH, Page A-3)

Witnesses expressed disbelief and shock after they watched the small plane explode.

Order in the court

Budget and judges' salaries discussed

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Funding of local district courts has once again come under fire from several communities, most notable are those in the Conference of Western Wayne County, including the city of Romulus.

Approximately two-thirds of the district court operating cost is paid by the state with the remaining amount provided by local governments, according to Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally.

McAnally, who also serves as secretary in the conference, explained, "I suggested we take a good hard look into court funding. The revenues aren't bad. But we have no jurisdiction over how the court spends the money from its budget. They're very autonomous. I have no problem with the judges. Both are very fine men. I just question how the courts are financed."

According to Charles Walls, court magistrate and administrator, the budget this year at the 34th District Court is $653,000, however, it handles nearly $1.5 million in funds. All profit exceeding the operating budget of the court is paid to the city of Romulus.

"Romulus recognizes a pretty neat profit. Our payment to them for the last six months of 1986 was $245,000. And that goes into the general fund twice a year," he said.

The court has served the five communities of Romulus, Belleville, Huron Township, Van Buren Township and Sumpter Township since 1969. The present facility was built by the federal government in 1977 at no cost to local taxpayers noted Walls who joined the administrative staff when the court first opened 18 years ago.

While the 34th District Court may be boon to the city of Romulus, residents in nearby Westland are not so optimistic. Mayor Charles Griffin of Westland, president of the conference, said, "The city of Westland passed a resolution requesting support that the state completely fund the district court. We subsidize the costs

Romulus unemployment rate declines

Unemployment steadily decreased among Romulus residents during 1986, although the number of unemployed remains considerably higher than average in both the state and the county, according to figures released by the Michigan Employment Security Exchange.

Economic analyst Bruce Weaver said unemployment averaged 10.2 percent in the city during the past 12 months. Michigan averaged 8.8 percent and Wayne County, 8.3 percent.

All figures are lower than the previously recorded in 1985 where Romulus had 11.7 percent unemployment, the state, 9.9 percent and the county, 9.6 percent.

Weaver noted that the rate during the last quarter of the year was "way below the annual average." He said unemployment peaked during the month of July with a rate of 12 percent. He said the latest statistics available are for the month of December and they reveal a rate of 8.4 percent.

The figures reflect unemployment among Romulus residents regardless of where they work, Weaver said. These statistics are not however, indicative of unemployment in city businesses.

Of the 11,275 eligible Romulus workers in the labor force last year, 10,125 were employed throughout the year, 975 were not.

These figures can be compared with those recorded during the 1982 recession in when state unemployment peaked at 16 percent, the county at 15 percent and again Romulus was higher, which according to Mayor Beverly McAnally reached 18 percent.

"There's been a recovery since the recession. Manufacturing was hardest hit. Several industries have not rebounded to pre-recessionary levels. The service industries, like hotels in Romulus, are normally much less affected and since then have expanded tremendously. Overall economic growth has slowed," he said.

McAnally commented, "If one segment of the economy in the city falls on hard times, the whole city is out of work. This is one reason I have tried so hard to diversify economic activity in the city. The city will address the unemployment problem. I'm not satisfied with 8 percent."

She added that the Downriver Community Conference recently approved a grant to help dislocated workers, available to Romulus residents.

Parents protest reorganization

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

More than 100 residents packed the board room of the Romulus School Administration Building during the regular meeting of the members of the board Monday evening demanding answers regarding a recent "reorganization" of administrative personnel.

Although the audience remained relatively calm during the two-hour meeting, Board President Ken Berlinn more than once pounded the gavel to restore order.

Some people attended to protest proposed budget cuts, including the closing of Hayti School, and others came to question the "firing" of Al Sheffield, principal at Romulus Senior High School for the past five years. Sheffield had announced the "firing" to members of his staff last Friday, although members of the board have confirmed only his transfer to the administrative staff at the board office.

School Superintendent Dr. William Bedell opened the meeting not by specifically addressing these issues but referring to the impending changes as a "reorganization."

He said, "The details are strictly mine, and until I legally discuss the subject with the union, neither I, nor anybody, can say anything. Come back two weeks from tonight when everything is worked out. There will no staff changes during this period and will probably take considerably longer."

Within 10 minutes, members of the school board requested an executive session. After 45 minutes behind closed doors, they returned to an increasingly impatient audience.

According to Board Member Mary King, this action is an administrative decision. "Bedell discussed it with us, and a majority of the board is in agreement with him. It has been talked about for a long time," she said.

Although school officials will neither confirm nor deny the rumor, an anonymous source from the school said the "reorganization" involves not only Sheffield but several other school administrators.

"This is a lateral move," said King. "It's very positive rather than negative. Nothing is final. We needed somebody in the board office, someone to help out. Sheffield is one of the best curriculum people in the district. There's a lot of people who like him, and some who don't."

According to sources, Sheffield will develop all curriculum in the district, a job now performed by Terrel LeCesne the personnel director.

As part of the shuffle, Tom Dolan, principal of the junior high would assume the high school principalship. High school vice-principal Jessie Merriweather would then become junior high principal, sources said.

"The details are not official and nobody has been transferred. Obviously, people will be upset anytime you have a change," Bedell stated.

"We have reassigned the staff to better utilize their

Associated names circulation director

Byron Spencer has been named as circulation director for Associated Newspapers.

"I am happy to welcome Byron Spencer to our management team," said David J. Willett, owner and publisher of the six weekly papers published by the Associated Newspaper group. "Byron has demonstrated an energy level and a commitment to the company that tells me he is destined to become an important part of our future marketing plan," Willett continued.

Spencer, 26, attended Wayne Memorial High School and is a lifelong area resident. He spent four years in the military, and he and his son, Michael, 6, reside in Wayne.

Spencer joined the Associated staff more than a year ago, and worked as an advertising sales representative before transferring to the circulation department four months ago.

"It is my goal to take an active role with our carriers and to be able to improve the delivery of our publications to those we serve.

"Obviously, my first priority is to make the papers, The Belleville Enterprise, The Romulus Roman, The Inkster-Ledger Star, The Canton Eagle, The Wayne Eagle and The Westland Eagle more accessible to the public. This is the best weekly newspaper in the state, and we provide our subscribers with more local news than any other publication," Spencer said.

"My goal is to let people know that we are here and to get our paper into the hands of the readers. We have a great product, and I want to let people know that and make it easier for them to be a part of what we do."

Spencer is the son of Jean Peterson of Wayne and Byron Spencer of Westland.

POLICE AND SCHOOL officials are still investigating the report of the explosion of a pipe bomb in a field behind Cory Elementary School. The night custodian, Olga Komyathy, "heard a loud bang and then glass break" at 7:30 p.m. on the evening of Feb. 18. Police reports state that a two foot long by two inch in diameter pipe bomb detonated approximately 50 feet from the school. A portion of the pipe smashed the window. The following day, principal Peter Silveri met with the entire Cory staff and explained the incident and reviewed the bomb threat procedure. Neither school or police officials have any substantial leads in the case. The maximum penalty for possession of explosives is five years in prison and depending on the intended use, could be up to 25 years in prison, according to police.

son, director of Wayne County Airports, the pilot got off course, broke a wing tip, hit the taxi way, flipped over, bounced and skidded near concourse F. "It was terrible crash. Fire trucks responded within minutes. The cities of Romulus and Taylor provided added backup help. It was a ghastly sight," he said.

The National Transportation Safety Board will determine how the crash occurred, he added.

Eyewitnesses provided the most accurate account of the crash, according to Jamison. "I saw it explode," said two witnesses from New York. "You could feel the heat. We got out of there as fast as we could."

"First there was a big fire ball. Flames hit the glass. Then there was this terrible black smoke. People were flabbergasted. Police cars and hundred's of people descended on the area within minutes. Everybody was visibly upset. I'm still shaking and I've got to get on another plane just like that," said one businessman from New Jersey.

Stories of heroism emerged as the aftermath of the disaster unfolded. "Karlton Jones was our local hero," said Sky Chef manager Mike Eberley about one of his three employees injured when the plane crashed into their trucks. Jones pulled an unconscious fellow employee from a burning truck.

"You could smell the stench from the plane wreckage, and it wasn't burning wire," said Eberley who was on the scene within 15 minutes. "This was the only major airport accident to take place near a terminal."

According to Romulus Emergency Preparedness Director Margaret Leduc, airport and local officials discussed and reviewed their disaster plans just two days before the plane crash.

The plan allows for several individuals from various local departments to gather in the Wayne County Emergency Management Office at the airport. At that time, representatives from all area hospitals, ambulance services, fire and police departments are coordinated to provide the most efficient and immediate use of their services, and keep the decision makers in one spot.

strengths. In most cases, everybody should be happy. These are the kind of assignments people view as a challenge. Sheffield and I discussed the matter privately Friday. He choose to make an announcement to his staff, part of which was inaccurate," he added. Sheffield is president of the Romulus Association of School Administrators Union. School staff and students were upset with the impending decision and disagree with the change. They sight only 15 weeks remaining and ask why couldn't they finish out the present school year with existing staff.

One parent said there have never been any derogatory remarks about Sheffield. Several high school seniors attended the meeting to "find out what's going on." "We were told Sheffield was fired and Dolan was coming to the high school. If he was doing something wrong, we want to know," they said.

Some students said Sheffield fought them on several things. Others said he brought back many programs to the school, like drama, choir, trips and the academic letter.

"No one really knew who he was," said another student.

The move will affect about 800 students and 40 staff in the junior high and 1,500 students and 80 staff in the high school.

"If it ain't broke, don't fix it," said the poster one concerned parent pasted on the board room wall during the executive session.

Officers honored

The first annual Romulus police awards presentation read like a page of local crime history.

Forty-four Romulus police officers were recognized during the ceremony conducted at city hall last month.

"I think they're a pretty sharp looking group. I'm real pleased with the attention this community gives its police department," said Mayor Beverly McAnally.

The program recognizes the special achievements, the meritorious service and help to the citizens of this community by their law enforcement officers. These individuals have contributed and assured that the Romulus Police Department is a professional law enforcement agency, Police Chief Charles Wilmoth told more than a hundred spectators who had gathered to witness the ceremony.

The police department color guard led the audience in the pledge of allegiance. Six different awards were then presented to officers and five civilians.

Those officers who received the distinguished service award "for exceptionally meritorious conduct involving exemplary courage, great risk and danger" were, Terry Balewski, David Early, Michael Ondejko, Dan Snyder, Michael St. Andre, Michael Liebert and Jeffrey Lazarski.

The department citation was awarded "for outstanding performance under unusual or difficult circumstances" to the following officers, Joseph Richardson, Eric Painter, Emmett Barnes, Cora Wilkinson,

The life saving award was given to Tom Ellis and Giroux.

A department commendation certificate was presented to Kreg Booker, John Hlinak, Gordon Milaniak, James Rafalski, Jeffrey James, Barnes, Synder, Ellis, Ondejko, Smith and Early. "Each person performed a duty or assignment in an exceedingly masterful or skillful manner."

The civilians whose actions resulted in the prevention or solution of a major crime or assisted in the apprehension of a dangerous person were Andrew Nagy, Don Halbritner, Jerry Klekner, Virginia Almosch and Noella Kalich.

Seventeen police and six reserve officers completed five years of service in the department.

The mayor summarized each situation before handing the individual their outstanding achievement award.

In the midst of a hostile crowd, McAnally recalled, Wilkinson administered CPR and first aid to a shooting victim. In another case, several officers located a felon hiding under the insulation in an attic crawl space.

Stolen cars, high speed chases, kidnapping and murder were the subject of several situations occurring in Romulus during the past year for which local police officers were commended. "To many of these officers and citizens, we owe more than an award, some people owe their lives," said McAnally.

with our court, the 18th District Court. While it cost $1 million to operate, we realize only $849 in revenues."

"We make money here," said Judge Henry Zaborowski of 34th District Court. Local governments don't want to kill the golden goose. This area is 25 percent of county land or 144 square miles, which includes two freeways, two airports, police agencies from three townships, two cities and the state, the park rangers, Coast Guard and the Department of Natural Resources.

"All these people bring in work and we grind it out with only two judges. We have a crew that works. The work load is getting worse, but if we slowed up, it would become unmanageable. We don't treat criminals with kid gloves," he stated. James Stone is the other 34th District Court judge.

Zaborowski said the idea for state funding was brought before state legislators eight years ago for implementation in three stages. The first phase was for the state to completely fund Detroit courts. "They never got beyond that phase. It doesn't matter to me who I get paid from. But it may matter to the city who gets the surplus money," he conceded.

During their regular Monday meeting last week, members of Romulus City Council approved a pay raise for the 34th District Court judges as requested by Walls and the Michigan Supreme Court.

According to Walls, the judges now earn $78,000 and effective Sept 1, will earn $82,000. "They've always earned the maximum amount," he added.

There being no further comments or questions the Public Hearing was closed.

PUBLIC HEARING was held on the Industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate filed by L & W Engineering, which would provide partial exemption from ad valorem real property taxes for a period of up to twelve (12) years. TREASURER'S REPORT: Deadline for paying taxes at the Treasurer's office has passed. All tax payments must now be paid at Wayne County.

In 1985 all special assessments were deleted for the relative tax effort calculations. Senate Bill 40, currently in the House Appropriations Committee, provides for special assessments being included in the relative tax effort calculations. Passage of this Bill would benefit the Township in additional State revenue sharing funds.

Treasurer stated property can be cleared, however, no excavating or building can take place. Planning Commission did not recommend approval of Site Plan, zoning inappropriate.

Chief Traskos presented plaques, which will be attached to the two new fire vehicles, to the Board which list each of their names and thanked them for their support for the Fire Department millage.

Chief Traskos complimented the Police Department in the apprehension of a burglar during a B & E. (Chief Traskos witnessed the apprehension.)

BUY U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

By CHEF LARRY JANES
ANP Special Writer

One pound of tea makes approximately 200 cups. Most tinne teas last only about a year, so when you have decided on a variety worthy of investigation, be careful not to buy more than you need. Always store tea in a light-proof, airtight container at room temperature for best-brewed results. By the way, herbal teas aren't really teas at all. They are a variety of dried herbs and spices.

Bring fresh water to a boil (no softened waters or well water here), and when the water boils, remove from the heat and allow the boiling to subside for a few seconds before pouring. A rounded teaspoon per 6-ounce cup is recommended. Pour it over the tea leaves and allow to steep for about four to five minutes, depending on strength.

Bon Appetit!

Mix well and store in an airtight container. Use 2 teaspoons per cup of hot water.

Place all ingredients into a preheated teapot. Fill with hot water and allow to steep for 3 minutes. Stir gently, but not too much.

TEAHOUSE ORANGE TEA SOUP

Bring to a boil 1 pint of orange juice; add tea and spices and simmer 15 minutes. Strain to remove tea leaves and allow to stand for 45 minutes before removing cinnamon stick. Soak gelatin in cold water; add to hot orange juice. Combine remaining ingredients and place in a glass or stainless steel container. Cover and refrigerate overnight.

Student spending soars

Parents of students at Romulus Junior High School who recently opened a school store have done such a fine job that they have actually had to develop a policy regarding the sale of candy and other "junk food," according to fund raising chairman, Linda Robbins. The new policy requires that purchases made by students be placed in a brown paper bag with their name. Items are then picked up at the end of the day. "It's almost embarrassing to say we're making too much money," she admitted. ANP photo by Guy Warren/staff photographer

local news in brief

Adult bookstore is closed

WAYNE — A Wayne County Circuit Court Judge ordered the doors of the Read More News and Video adult bookstore in Wayne closed last Friday, ending an almost seven-month battle between the city and bookstore owners.

Circuit Court Judge Cynthia Stephens ruled that the business must cease operation until property site plans and occupancy permits were secured. The bookstore had opened in August 1986 to the surprise of Wayne city officials who had expected the business to be a video sales, service and rental operation.

Bookstore attorneys have appealed the recent decision, and a new hearing has been set for Friday.

City officials must still contend with a U.S. District Court suit filed by the bookstore, alleging that the city is violating First Amendment rights by imposing site plan and occupancy permit requirements.

Student, 16, is slain

WAYNE — A 16-year-old Wayne youth died Monday and a 25-year-old resident remained in satisfactory condition after sustaining knife wounds during a residential fight on Moore street.

Michael Edward Reid, an 11th-grader at Wayne Memorial High School, died shortly after noon Monday at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. Kevin Ditmore, the other knifing victim, underwent surgery at an area hospital and was in satisfactory condition on Monday.

Police have identified a suspect in the slaying, but no arrests have yet been made. This is the first homicide of 1987 for the Wayne police department.

Police near breakthrough

WESTLAND — Westland Police may be nearing a breakthrough in the slaying investigation of a 22-year-old woman.

According to Police Inspector Paul Schnarr, this week may bring some concrete news in the investigation. "We've got our fingers crossed, we may get something this week," Schnarr said the possible breakthrough will be provided by a key person in the investigation. "We have a sergeant bringing in a guy, with his lawyer, that we think may know something about the murder. He will be brought in this week, we are very hopeful that he will help in the investigation," he said.

The murder victim, 22-year-old, Susan Lewis, was shot one time in the neck, at her apartment on Orchard Circle. The slaying took place sometime on Friday, Feb. 27.

Slaying hearing continues

CANTON TOWNSHIP — A court hearing to determine if two juvenile murder suspects should face charges as adults, continued yesterday morning in Washtenaw County Juvenile Court.

Two 16-year-old Ypsilanti Township boys are in custody for the Dec. 30 slaying of Mary Anne Hulbert, 16, of Canton. Her body was discovered in a wooded area of Superior Township eight days after she was killed. She had been shot several times.

Hospitals hope to cure transportation ills

Although the service has existed for just more than one month, the PCHA Health Connector has already been received with open arms in the community. ANP photo by Guy Warren/staff photographer

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Doctors in the 1980s aren't making house calls, but a group of local hospitals are providing the next best thing.

The Peoples Community Hospital Authority in Wayne launched a personalized effort in health care this year by offering free rides to each of the five PCHA hospitals. An innovative concept in the business, the four vans which are a part of the "Health Connector" program have already garnered widespread approval by area residents, according to one hospital spokesman.

"Basically the figures were showing that one of the biggest problems people had in health care was transportation. We just felt that this service would fill the gap," said Michael Thomas, of the PCHA community relations department. "We started out slowly to get the program in place. Now we're running about 132 one-way trips a week."

The Health Connectors has been in operation since Jan. 28, Thomas said, and has particularly found favor with the senior citizens. Users of the service can be transported to any of the PCHA hospitals — Annapolis, Wayne; Beyer Memorial, Ann Arbor; Seaway, Trenton; Outer Drive, Lincoln Park; and Heritage in Taylor — or the PT Plus Center in Westland.

"The service is for any kind of appointment. It's obviously not for emergencies, and it's also not for visitors either," Thomas explained. "I think the biggest usage of it so far has been for physical therapy and seniors, although anyone can ride the Health Connector free of charge."

In order to schedule a ride on the special health care transit system, patients should call at least 24 hours in advance of their appointment, Thomas said. A 15-minute buffer period should also be allowed, he added, in case the system is running behind schedule.

"Overall, it's working fairly well. The original plan was to have a six-month trial period," Thomas explained. "After that time we'll evaluate the program and see where to go from there. I think this is the kind of service you will be seeing more of in health care. We think it's working."

To schedule a ride on the Health Connector, call toll-free 1-800-255-8080. The service is available to anyone residing in a community served by the PCHA, including Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Romulus, Belleville, Van Buren and Sumpter townships.

Substance abuse center to open

A substance abuse center will open March 20 at Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti in a newly-renovated building outside of the hospital.

An open house will be staged from noon-6 p.m. that day to herald the opening of the center at 21 S. Prospect, one-half block north of the hospital.

The primary focus of the center will be outpatient adult and adolescent treatment. Individual, group, family and educational sessions will be offered.

For more information, call the center at 481-8760 or 481-8761.

Last year, the Michigan Legislature passed a package of laws concerning the public "right-to-know" about potentially hazardous substances in the work place. The laws, which affect all employers covered by the Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Act, require containers of chemical substances to be clearly labeled. When the employers purchase chemical substances, the must obtain material safety data sheets (MSDS) from the manufacturer. The MSDS, which list the chemical properties and potential hazards, must be retained in a permanent file. Employees must be trained on the safe and proper use of the chemicals, and they have the right to refuse to handle a container which is either not labeled or which does not have an MSDS.

Employees of chemical manufacturers, importers and distributors and other manufacturing workers have been protected by the right-to-know laws since last year. The laws are now in effect for non-manufacturing employees. The same labeling, training, MSDS and right of refusal provisions of the law apply to manufacturing and non-manufacturing employees.

The state Labor Department will continue a series of seminars for employers affected by the right-to-know laws. The seminars include information about who is covered by the laws, employee training, enforcement and the MSDS, which are called the cornerstone of right-to-know. Interested employers can contact the Safety Education and Training Division of the Department of Labor (telephone 517-322-1809) for information about upcoming seminars and additional information.

The amount of training required depends on the chemical involved. "For instance," said one state right-to-know official, "if a powdered cleanser was the most serious chemical used by the cleaning staff, the training would obviously be very brief." Some chemical products are not subject to right-to-know labeling and MSDS requirement, such as janitor supplies that can also be used in the same way in the home and purchased at any supermarket. Common office products such as copy machine supplies or correction fluids are also exempt, unless they are used in an employee's full-time duties.

The right-to-know laws enacted by the Legislature protect the health and safety of Michigan workers. And employers will also benefit. They can use the information they are required to obtain about the substances they buy to make better purchasing decisions. And, the laws help prevent loss of time due to accidental injury or illness resulting from improper chemical handling.

Hospital authority elects new officers

The Peoples Community Hospital Board of Directors elected new officers at their meeting Feb. 26.

Donald Pizzimenti of Allen Park was again elected chairman of the group. Patrick Norton of Wayne was named vice chairman, Roger Reemer was named treasurer and Joseph Melling was named secretary of the body.

Also selected to a four-year member-at-large term was Edward Dudek of Inkster.

The board also finalized the PCHA portion of an agreement between a four-hospital consortium and Wayne County to buy the Westland Medical Center. The proposal was made last month by the Westland Health Network, Inc. to lease and eventually buy the former county hospital for $7.5 million.

To participate in the deal, the PCHA will contribute $4.8 million, according to Maureen Camps, director of community relations. The Wayne County Board of Commissioners still have to act on the deal before it is finalized. The proposal is expected to appear before the county officials this month.

bob denys speaking

Decade of change is almost over

Faster than a Romulus police chase, more powerful than a Metro Airport explosion, the decade of the 80s will be gone before anybody can explain what happened or why. There will be no survivors, only victims.

With only three years remaining until 1990, I can't wait. I don't want to wait. The 80s are too much and almost more than this product of the 60s can handle.

Assassinations, riots, war, Watergate and urban renewal were daily occurrences when I grew up. Yet, nothing could prepare me for what is happening now. The good ship Mother Earth appears to be following a fatal path like the Titanic. Sure it's a jungle out there, and that's just at Farmer Jack's checkout counter.

Chaos, total chaos is the only way to explain this totally un-

denys

explainable, but very forgettable, decade. Just lead me to the nearest bridge - and if you could, make it the brand new, state-of-the-art, cracked and crumbling Zilwaukee Bridge - and I will jump off. I'd rather do so off of the Ambassador Bridge in Detroit, but the traffic backup is so long, I might change my mind in the meantime.

How to remember the 80s? Think of AIDS. There may ultimately be a positive side to this disgusting situation and, at the very least, put sex into amore proper perspective. What a fun subject. The helplessness of an AIDS victim is symbolic of everyone living during the 80s.

And if the thrill of sex is gone, what about nuclear war? Will President Reagan, as a newspaper comic once depicted, roll over in bed to push the button to start World War III, or would he just be calling his nurse? You decide. He wouldn't remember anyway.

Are drugs getting you down? Maybe you're not taking the right ones. However, drugs are no joke. The direct relation between crime and drugs is frightening, yet understandable. Breaking and enterings occur with such slickness. Could thieves ever be admired for their ability? An expensive drug habit can only be satisfied with easy money. Easy money for the criminal, certainly, most people work hard for it. Yes, there is bright side. The 80s are almost over. As a combination of the revolutionary 60s decade and the selfish "me decade" of the 70s, the 80s have no choice but to tackle what seem to be the worst of the economic and social problems to ever plague mankind.

As a group, we appear to be at the end our rope. We're backed into a corner with no hope for escape.

But wait, did I see the first green leaf of the first flower of spring? I did. So take one day at a time. Because after this, it's the birds of spring, joys of summer and the harvest of fall. Very naturally and regularly life goes on. Work as hard as we can, and hope for the best is all we can do. Nature does the rest. Who could ask for anything more?

Changes are being made in the way long distance users in your area place some operator-handled calls.

These changes affect Michigan Bell customers having phone numbers beginning with 941, 942.

This is an informational message about your phone service from Charlene Jones-Mitchell, your Michigan Bell Corporate Affairs Manager.

"These telephone service changes concern only operator-handled long distance calls outside your Michigan Bell long distance calling area. They apply to collect, credit card, person-to-person calls, calls billed to a third number, and requests for assistance. Some customers will need to contact their long distance companies for new instructions on how to place such calls. To find out if and how the service changes may affect your service, we ask you to read the following explanation."

An explanation of the changes in your operator-assistance service for calls outside your Michigan Bell long distance calling area (interLATA calls).

How operator-assisted calls were placed before. If you wanted operator assistance to place a long distance call, you dialed "O," or "O" plus the area code (if required), and the phone number you wanted and an operator put the call through for you.

How these calls are placed now. If the long distance service on the phone you are using is provided by a company that offers operator services and you want operator assistance to place a call, you dial "O," plus the area code (if required), and the phone number and an operator will assist you. To reach the long distance operator for additional assistance, you must dial "OO." (Important: If you dial "O" without the phone number, you will get a Michigan Bell operator who can place calls within your Michigan Bell area only.)

If the long distance service on the phone you're using is provided by a long distance company that does not offer operator services, you must contact that long distance company to get instructions on how to place operator-assisted long distance calls.

Please note: If you dial "O," plus the area code, and the number, you may get a recording or no response. Further, if you dial "O" without the number, you will get a Michigan Bell operator who will refer you to your long distance company for further instructions.

If you are calling from a pay phone, continue to use the instructions posted on the phone.

Again, you should contact your long distance company for new instructions on how to place operator-handled long distance calls outside your Michigan Bell calling area. If you have any other questions about the changes, please call Michigan Bell's Let's Talk Center. The toll-free number is 1 800 555-5000.

Please watch your Michigan Bell bill inserts for further information.

Latching on to a solution

The plight of the "latch key kids" has received national attention after the recent publication of a survey revealed that about one-fourth of youngsters between the ages of 5 and 13 have no adult supervision after school. Attention was focused on the potential dangers which could occur to the two million children left without supervision including the hazards of home fires, exploitation by child molesters and the negative influence of other unsupervised youngsters with time on their hands and no one to monitor what is done during those hours.

There is probably not a working parent who does not have a horror story – ranging from minor mischief to major havoc – that occurred prior to their returning home from work. Children are naturally inquisitive and curious beings and added to this is their natural tendency to try out new ideas and experiences that their parents have placed "off limits" when adult supervision is not present to call a halt to the behavior.

There also is a tendency for youngsters who feel lonely and neglected by their working parents to try out a forbidden behavior to attract attention. In their young minds comes forth the expectation that "they won't leave me alone again after they find out what I've done."

For all of these reasons and more, parents have been duly concerned about the unsupervised hours that their children spend between the close of the school day and the time they arrive home from work. Often, there are no alternatives available for the working parents even though they may want to arrange for the supervision of their children during those few hours before and after school. The reason for this is the change in society itself. Years ago Grandma or the next-door neighbor was the babysitter, but today Grandma is either in the workforce herself or on a senior citizens trip to Hawaii. The same is true for the next-door neighbor who probably also is employed on a full-time or part-time basis and is looking for someone to watch her youngsters, too.

The aftershock of the survey prompted studies of the potential problems and few, if any, answers to the questions raised.

However, in our own area we seem to have already taken a positive step to dealing with the latch key problem through the Wayne-Westland Family YMCA. The association is sponsoring latch key programs throughout the country, but the local one seems to have come up with the best alternative for working parents.

The unique feature of the local latch key program – available in several district schools – is that youngsters are dropped off at the YMCA by their parents in the morning and picked up from there in the evening. Buses make the rounds of the schools at the start of classes and pick them up from the various locations when classes are over. While they are at the 'Y,' a child care worker supervises their recreation, helps them with their homework and provides a listening ear for their concerns and problems at school.

The program allows for the variances in starting and quitting times of the parents – an important factor if one must begin work at 7 a.m. and school does not begin until 8:45, for example. Care also is provided at the Wayne-Westland Family YMCA on days when school is not in session – another area of prime concern for the working parents, and especially of single parents.

A fee structure supports the program with some scholarship funds available for those who are not able to afford the cost. Perhaps, instead of looking for a new latch key program to establish, the federal government could consider some form of subsidy to an already established program – like the one at the YMCA – and save the taxpayers from what could be much higher costs to institute new school or workplace child care programs.

The program has a lot to offer to working parents and their latch key children and could provide a model to be implemented in other areas. The central location, for example, eliminates duplication of services and provides a cost-efficient operation that would not be possible in scattered sites. It also offers quality care and supervision from an association that has had a long, proud and successful history of working with children.

Let's not be alarmed at the problems revealed in the survey. Instead, let's point to a good, local program that could solve the problems of working parents across the nation if adopted and adapted to the particular needs of the area.

Hop to it

My wife always reminds me, usually during one disaster or another, that there are only two kinds of ideas, good ideas that work and good ideas that don't. Sometimes, I think I'm famous for the latter.

Last week Susan and I attended the National Newspaper Association Government Affairs Conference in Washington D.C., and the convention this year proved to be even more interesting than usual.

Among other activities, we were invited to the Italian embassy to hear prepared remarks by the Italian ambassador and then to enjoy some casual conversation, refreshments and a brief look around the building.

We were taken by the entrance hall with a floor of Roman travertine marble and pillars imported from Verona. We decided that a few snapshots on the beautiful, curved marble staircase would be nice. It turned out not to be such a good idea, or as Susan would say, "a good idea that didn't work."

After a few minutes of picture taking, I was descending the steps and looked back as I was stepping in the opposite direction.

As my brain remained in Rome and my right foot searched for terra firma, my ankle made a left turn and I attempted to prove the theories of Galileo on gravity and DeVinci's contention that man can fly using his own power, all at the same time. The first one worked...the second one didn't.

As I lay sprawled across the hallway floor, I suggested that I was only inspecting the authenticity of the travertine marble. They didn't buy it. Nor did they accept that I was pretending I was posing for a Michaelangelo painting.

The Italian doctor on staff was very charming, but also very forceful in his suggestion that I have myself x-rayed as soon as possible. He offered to help in any way he could, "But I can do nothing without a picture."

As I politely declined, I thanked him for his examination, and as I limped out slung over Susan's shoulder, I knew I was in a world of hurt.

On the agenda that evening, was a tour of the Pentagon, dinner at a Japanese restaurant, and a bus tour of the Washington monuments at night. Well, what was I to do? Fortified with a Tylenol 3, I decided to tough it out. Another good idea that didn't work.

The Pentagon was interesting...ouch! There are 17 miles of hallway in the five-sided structure that houses the headquarters of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, and National Guard...yipes!

The food at the restaurant was interesting, and the view of the Washington area monuments at night was breathtaking, yewah!! By the time we returned to the hotel, we were too tired to endure the inevitable wait at the hospital.

With good advice from the doc back home whom I reached by phone, we packed my mangled stump in ice and resolved to wait until the morn to play President Reagan and limp into the George Washington Hospital emergency room. That of course is where they took the President after John Hinckley tried to use him for target practice.

By morning, I was a wheelchair candidate, the large purple mass I had uncovered the night before convinced me to "check it out" and get it examined. I've been rolling or crutching it ever since.

We spent most of the day in sick land, while outside it was 75 degrees, and the crocuses were starting to bloom. To make all this up to Susan, I let her push me around the hotel for

Resident is not happy with police

To The Editor:
I had to chuckle at first when I read your article titled "Good Neighbor" by Mark Nicholas (Feb. 4, 1987). If Janice Fuller is wondering why there are no Westland police patrolling her area as of the last few months, it's because they were highly concentrated over here on Easley Drive and Rohn Street.

Tell Janice all she has to do is lodge a complaint against a Westland police officer and she will have all the police she would even want to see patrolling her neighborhood. It was a disgusting display of intimidation and one many of my neighbors won't forget.

We are law-abiding citizens and this shouldn't have happened.

Our problem, in my opinion, was completely whitewashed by Inspector Dansby who is solely responsible for his patrolmen's actions.

There is no internal affairs to investigate without prejudice the actions of patrolmen in Westland! Why?

I am thoroughly turned off by the Westland police and glad they aren't patrolling our neighborhood as frequently as before. (We fought the problem before a judge.)

Good neighbors are a better way of stopping crime in Westland and the only way.

Romulus resident disgusted with school district

To The Editor:

May I take this opportunity to tell the Romulus Board of Education how disgusted I am to read that our school district that levies the highest millage in the state, has mortgaged our system and forced us again to be faced with threats of cutbacks? I hope we will not be asked to increase our taxes to continue what appears to be a gross mismanagement of funds.

I think our board members must take a hard look at their goals and those people responsible to carry them out.

Westland court clarifies story

To The Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to clarify some of the statements made in the article by Mark Nicholas regarding state funding of the district court. A statement attributed to Mike Gorman, finance director, said that the 18th District Court has never operated in the black is inaccurate. While it is true that the court expenditures, including almost 25 percent of its total budget for building costs, exceed revenues, the court has not operated in the red, where its expenditures exceeded the amount allocated by the city council. In fact, last year's expenditures were approximately $50,000 less than budgeted, and revenues exceeded projections by $20,000.

The item of revenues versus expenditures is a moot point. The court is not in business to make money. The court, like city departments, is there to serve the citizens of Westland. It's main goal is to dispense justice in a fair and impartial manner. If it can do that in a fiscally efficient manner than that's even better, but the court staff's primary concern is that anyone who has contact with them is treated fairly.

for another day, do all the packing, get me and the luggage into the cab, through two airports, in and out of the parking lot van, loaded in the car, into the apartment and into a horizontal position.

From there, unpacking, laundry, cooking dinner and cleaning up was a snap for someone with her happy-go-lucky nature. So what if its only been four months since her surgery. I'm sure the exercise did her a lot of good.

Now I should explain that one of the big drawing cards to go to the meeting was the annual invitation to go to the White House, something we had to cancel out on the last two years because of the last minute press of business.

My wife has never been to the White house at all. So when we arrived in Washington after coming close to cancelling again, we both looked forward to our visit to 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

We were informed that only one person from each paper would be selected to meet with the President in the White House Annex known as the old executive building. Well, guess who they chose to listen to the President?? You got it.

I think I'm, as they say, behind the ol' eight ball, with my right foot in a . . . half plaster cast, which I got in Washington, and neither I, nor Susan, will soon forget it.

At any rate, that's how I got half-plastered in D.C. Another good idea, that didn't work.

See you next week.

County adjusts budget

First, budget cuts are made and then they are adjusted, according to Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard.

Beard referred to the recent $3.3 million cut approved by members of the Board of Commissioners which adjusted amounts originally proposed for certain departments.

"None of us are happy about making cuts, but we came up with some fairly reasonable compromises in light of the difficult task we have to do," she said.

According to Beard, County Executive Edward McNamara foresaw shortfalls in the Sheriff Department Court Fees, the sale of the Water Plant in Detroit, concealed weapons fees and municipal misdemeanor charges.

Members on the board felt that certain cuts could have been made in other areas.

Beard said the commission relied on past performance to determine which cuts would be made.

Workers at the SEMTA bus barn make sure buses are clean and in good mechanical order.

Bus barn is haven of moving activity

By SHERRY WOODARD
ANP Staff Writer

In the middle of a field just off Michigan Avenue in Inkster stands an important spoke in the hub of SEMTA's Wayne County operations.

Twice a day, scores of buses are driven off the lot at the Wayne County terminal used by SEMTA, known as the SEMTA Bus Barn.

At peak commuter times in the morning and in the afternoon, drivers at the facility prepare for their daily rounds in metro Detroit.

The first of two peak busy periods begins at 4 a.m. as approximately 70 drivers arrive to pick up their coaches and begin morning rounds. The second peak period begins at 3 p.m. as drivers again prepare to pick up commuters in Wayne County and return them to their suburban neighborhoods.

"Our drivers work when the people want to ride," said Bob Zolkowski, SEMTA Division Manager. Once the morning rush hour is over, drivers return their coaches to the bus barn and enjoy a few hours of break time before returning for the afternoon rush.

Mechanics and maintenance personnel work around the clock at the facility in order to keep buses clean and mechanically trouble-free during SEMTA's 4 a.m. to 2:30 a.m. operating schedule.

Usually by 8 a.m. major mechanical work and preventive maintenance is begun by the first shift of mechanics.

About 2 p.m. SEMTA drivers return to the bus barn to once again pick up their coaches and begin their rounds for the afternoon.

From 4 p.m. until the wee hours of the morning second shift mechanics are on duty.

The maintenance crews have discovered more than a few surprises while performing their jobs, said Zolkowski.

Asked what has been the most surprising discovery, he replied, "Occasionally, we get passengers that fall asleep in the back seat."

When that occurs, Zolkowski said, arrangements are made to have a relative or friend come to the Wayne terminal to pick up the passenger.

"I always say I'll wait until I see the next thing before I say I've seen it all," Zolkowski said.

Bus drivers and maintenance crews also discover valuables such as purses and wallets on coaches, he said. "In some cases the driver has become familiar with his passengers so he'll say, 'When Mrs. Jones calls, tell her I found her purse,'" Zolkowski said.

Romulus wrestles statewide honors

Jim Schlener, the Romulus High outstanding 138-pound wrestling sensation, came within one victory of winning the coveted state championship.

Competing on Saturday in the state finals after racking up 56 consecutive victories, Schlener lost to Detroit Catholic Central's Mitch Quint by a 6-3 decision. Ironically, Schlener had defeated Quint the previous week for the Class A regional crown.

"It was a disappointment to say the least," said Romulus Coach Wayne Schimming who has guided the young talent over the past four years. "But, Jim can stand proud. He has accomplished what many young men only dream of. We are all proud of him."

Romulus also received a superlative effort from its 98-pounder Tony Venturini who brought home a third-place state medal in his weight class.

Romulus's third state qualifier, heavyweight Steve Anderson, was sidelined because of illness.

"Jim and Tony were outstanding wrestlers all year long for us," Schimming noted. "They worked hard. Disciplined themselves the entire season and our team looked to them for leadership and victories - the two fine young men always came through for us."

The Wolverine "A" Conference wrestling crown returned to Belleville last week. Coach Gerald Malecek's grapplers have won the title three out of the four past years.

A senior, Schlener stepped on the mats against Quint with a spotless 56 victories. Quint this time decided to be the aggressor and went on the attack and managed to eke out the crucial 6-3 victory.

To get to the finals Schlener had to stop last year's state runner-up, Tory Jackson, from Lansing Eastern. Schlener pinned his rival in 4:31, opening the way to the state championship.

Schlener also defeated Lenny Logan of Highland Park in 3:54 of the first round then worked overtime to eke out a victory over Howell's Denny Wilkerson.

Jim's accomplishment matched that of former Romulus wrestling great, Darrin Cline, who also was a state runner-up in 1987.

Venturini will be back next year. His 53-1 record this year established him as one of the finest lightweight wrestlers in the state this year. He launched his assault for a state title by defeating Tom Manzydas of Milford Lakeland, 11-2, but in the second round he came up against a tough Aaron Van Buren of Jenison who earned an 8-6 victory over the Romulus grappler.

The match went down to the last second with Venturini closing in on a pin...he had placed his opponent on his back as time ran out.

Venturini returned to the mats and defeated Saginaw Arthur Hills' Aurilio Delgado, 9-5, in the third round and destroyed Roel Manaus of Southfield Lathrup via a pin in the fifth round to clinch the third-place medal.

Since Romulus won't be entering the SCC officially until next year but competed against conference rivals and participated at the SCC championships, both were presented gold medals after winning their respective weight classes.

Romulus cagers are 'shattering'

Behind Billy Johnson's 33-point scoring efforts Romulus High claimed a 78-69 victory over Taylor Center Saturday to bring the curtains down on the regular basketball season.

The game between the two non-conference rivals was forced to be rescheduled when on Tuesday, Johnson drove in and 'dunked' a layup that shattered the backboards. Since no immediate replacement was available, the game was canceled and rescheduled.

"We are not playing consistent ball," pointed out Dan Henry, Romulus first-year coach. "We struggle in the first half and have to overcome early mistakes if we are to win."

With Aaron Lehr and Steve Kaneck paving the way, Center rallied from a 15-14 first period deficit to grab a 34-30 half time advantage. However, Johnson led the Eagle comeback with eight of his game-high 33 points in the third period that lifted Romulus in control, 54-43, entering the final frame. The Eagles sealed their 12th victory in 20 starts with a 24-16 scoring advantage in the final eight minutes.

"We definitely didn't have the intensity in the first half against them (Taylor Center)," said Henry. "That also was the case against Temperance Bedford earlier in the week. We played well in the second half, but we still have to put four quarters together."

Henry said that he believes the 12-8 record "isn't indicative on how well this team can play."

"We lost three overtime games and a couple of one-pointers," he continued, "and those could have gone either way."

Johnson who fired in 12 field goals and made nine of 11 charities for his 33 points led all scorers. Teammates Juan Street, who contributed 19 points and nine rebounds, and Luther Shannon who had 10, also were in double figures.

Lehr finished with 23, his team's high.

Romulus rallied to a 69-52 victory over Bedford after the two teams were deadlocked at 30-all for two quarters. Street proceeded to pump in 13 of his career high 33 points in the third quarter as the Eagles outscored their rivals 19-9 and 20-13 to chalk up the victory.

Johnson was the only other Eagle in double figures. He had 28.

Bedford got 25 points from Bill Ryan.

Ready and set

Belleville rips Southgate

Belleville looked like a team without a problem Friday night against Southgate Anderson.

Leaping to a 14-8 first-period lead and then outscoring their conference rivals 16-6 to close the half ahead 30-14, Coach Leon Birdyshaw's Tigers went on to claim a 71-34 victory over their Wolverine 'A' Conference basketball rivals.

"It was a good game for us," said Birdyshaw whose club brought the curtains down on a 10-4 Wolverine 'A' Conference season and a 13-6 overall mark. The Tigers also can boasting marring league champ, Wayne Memorial's league record.

"We need to continue to get balance to stop Wayne Tuesday night."

Belleville and Wayne Memorial were scheduled to play last night in the first round of the Class A district playoffs at Wayne. In their two conference meetings this year, the two rivals split.

Led by Kris Grantham, their senior point guard, Belleville put together a string of seven victories which Birdyshaw considers the team's highlight this season.

Local cagers see all-stars

Wayne Memorial, the defending and three-time winning Wolverine 'A' Conference basketball champs, and Belleville, the only team to defeat Wayne in the league this season, dominated four of five berths on the 1987 all-conference first team.

The team is chosen by conference coaches.

Mark Robinson and Mark Claiborne represent the reigning champs on this year's elite club, while Belleville has placed senior point guard, Chris Grantham, and Ladien Tait. The fifth member of the first team is Wyandotte's Terry Sansouci.

Grantham has been the key to Belleville's emergence as a cage power. The lightning-quick senior point guard has kept the Tigers in all of the games they have been in and had been the top scorer (17.8 ppg) and also counted 3.8 rebounds and 4.3 assists per. He is a four-year varsity performer, rare at a school noted for outstanding cagers.

Tait is 6-5 and 190 and unfortunately a senior. Coach Leon Birdyshaw would like to have him back for next year because "he has developed into an outstanding all-around player."

Bowler hits 300 game

"Unbelievable." That's what Harold "Harry" McArthur shouted after he rolled a perfect 300 game. McArthur, a Belleville resident, got his perfect game last Wednesday at Lodge Lanes, and he started the "unbelievable" evening with a 192 game, then got hot in his next game, finishing with a 245. Feeling good with the 245, McArthur then begin his historic evening, stringing together strike-after-strike that climaxed with his 300. It was his first perfect game. To the shouts and applause of teammates and fans, "Harry" walked away with a big grin on his face. "This is my first and I just can't tell anyone what it feels like." Like "unbelievable."

Not just a job

Career planning turns existing into living

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Most people spend more time preparing their shopping lists than they do in plan-ning a career, according to Jim Danielski of the Career Planning Specialists in Ply-mouth. But that doesn't mean it's too late to start planning a career, he said, stress-ing that a change in the work habits can come at any time in life.

Danielski began his career-planning business seven years ago, after several personal job shifts himself. A 17-year veteran of human and personnel rela-tions, Danielski sees all sorts of unhappy and burned out professionals enter his office each week and leave with the education and information that will start them on a new road to happiness and suc-cess.

"I was a career changer myself so I know what it's like. I originally was a biol-ogy and chemistry major, but I left that field to go into psychology," Danielski ex-plaind. "About seven years ago I disco-vered that there really wasn't any career counseling for the 35,000 jobs in our eco-nomy. I began to research the field and found out that there was a wealth of in-formation out there."

Career Planning Specialists isn't a job-placement agency, Danielski said. In-stead, clients of the business are given lessons on how to make a career plan or move on their own. In addition, Daniels-ki's business caters to the employer by working to find out just what kind of per-son is needed to fill the vacant positions within a specific company.

"I'm kind of like a matchmaker. I match people with employers," Danielski explained. "I teach employers how to select people to match the kind of position and environment. We look at what kind of personality and value system is needed to fill the job."

"What the employer is looking for is someone who will be a good investment. But in the same way, I'm not going to help the employer who is looking for someone who is loyal but isn't willing to give those loyal people something in return."

But working with employers still repre-sents only a fraction of the work Danielski does in career counseling. Helping the employee is his main objective, he said, helping turn an unhappy job into a self-fulfilling career.

"Career planning is different from job counseling. What career planning does is look at the work you do in the context of the rest of your life," said Danielski.

Danielski's lessons to his clients general-ly follow a six-step guide to self-fulfillment and career happiness. These steps in-clude:

- "Decide where you are. Economically, psychologically, socially, spiritually and materialistically";

- "Decide where I want to be";
- "Figure out where can I be. Many people get stuck here when they think they can't get much more out of life. I haven't met too many people who have aimed too high";

- "Decide what it takes on my part to get there." This step includes knowing how to market yourself, Danielski said, knowing how to prepare a resume, attend a job interview, enhance the physical appearance and determining what kind of investment will be needed;

- "Decide what your plan of strategy is. How are you going to get there. How long will it take? Career planning isn't an over-night process," Danielski said;

- "Every once in a while stop and ask yourself how your goals are progressing. Make amendments if needed."

Career Planning Specialists is located at 134 N. Main St., Plymouth. Call 459-7348 to make an appointment.

Residents warned of vacation fraud

Area residents are being warned that vacation offers sent in the mail which seem "too good to be true," may very well fit that axiom.

The Better Business Bureau recently received several complaints from local residents about vacation certificates they had received offering "free" lodging, airfare and cruises. To assist consumers in determining the validity of such offers, the BBB has just published a brochure, "Have You Won a Vacation," explaining the fraud schemes often included with these types of offers.

"Consumers may be required to make a purchase or attend a sales presentation prior to receiving information about the trip. Companies may also require a non-refundable processing and handling fee or a deposit to hold a reservation," said a BBB spokesman. "Quite often, these vacation are offered as an incentive to draw customers to the sales site. Keep in mind, however, consumers usually do not get something for nothing. The company may make up for its loss in other areas."

For a copy of the new booklet, send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to: Better Business Bureau, 150 Michigan Ave., Detroit, Mich. 48226.

Spring cleaning duties include the car

Winter is undoubtedly the worst time of year for cars. Not only do road salt and slush attack a car's finish, they also build up in hard-to-clean areas. According to Automotive Information Council this is one reason wheel wells are prone to rust.

The solution? AIC recommends a thorough cleaning each spring.

For starters, clean those wheel wells. To do this, use a hose with a nozzle set for a fullforce stream and hose down the well. Next, use a whisk broom to brush away any stubborn deposits of dirt. Use more spray to get rid of the dirt loosened by the brushing. After finishing the wheel wells, carefully spray around the moldings and trim as dirt and salt accumulate in these areas also.

Another often forgotten area is the engine. Cleaning the engine is not nearly as difficult as it sounds, and the engine will look better and run cooler. Several brands of solvents are available for this purpose. Simply spray the solvent on the engine block, wait a few minutes and hose off. Stubborn areas may take repeated applications.

When washing the car, AIC recommends using clean, soft cloths since sponges are virtually impossible to get clean. Small particles of dirt can be trapped in a sponge and damage the car's finish. Always use a large amount of water, especially when using a sponge, because the water will lessen any scratching that may occur. Do not wash the car in direct sunlight.

Always start on the roof of the car, and clean each surface using a circular motion. Dry each area with a chamois or a soft, lint-free cloth immediately after washing. This will prevent spotting. A chamois or lint-free cloth can be purchased in any auto supply store. Windows should be cleaned with any commercially available cleaner.

After cleaning the car, AIC recommends waxing once every three to four weeks. Waxing keeps the car looking nice and makes it easier to remove the dirt accumulated between washings. Waxes should be applied with clean cloths and using a circular motion. For polishing agents, follow the instructions on the container. ■

LEPRECHAN: In Irish folklore, a tricky old dwarf who if caught, may reveal the hiding place of treasure.

First sign of spring is the 'wheep-wheep'

Any motorist will tell you. The first sign of spring is not the trilling or robin redbreast, but the wheep-wheep of windshield wipers battling spring rains.

Snug in his watertight compartment behind these electrified arms, the average motorist takes his metronomic reliability for granted. But controlling windshield wipers has not always been push-button paradise, as examinations of some vintage automobile models in Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, shows.

The first motorists were not at all "fixed for blades." Not until 1903 did Mary Anderson of Birmingham, Ala., obtain a patent for a "window-cleaning device" - the first windshield wiper. She designed the gadget after a trip to New York City where she observed the difficulty streetcar drivers had seeing in the rain.

Anderson's device was hand-operated from inside a car, as is the single wiper on a 1919 Model T sedan in the museum. Imagine the coordination required to steer, move the throttle and wipe the windshield all at once. And imagine a busy intersection in the midst of a thunderstorm. As late as 1930, an American Austin wiper was operated solely by hand-power.

Eventually it was possible to leave the wiping to the wiper, such as the one on a 1929 Lincoln. This single wiper was powered by a vacuum motor, the next major development in wiper evolution.

The Bugatti Royale - never a car to skimp on the finer things in life - sports not one, not two, but three wipers all in a row on the 1930 model.

A 1931 Duesenberg displays a tandem arrangement with two connected wipers, also operated by a vacuum motor.

By the mid-1930s the wiper controls had been moved from the top of the windshield to the bottom, as found on a 1936 Lincoln Zephyr. These wipers moved in an opposing direction instead of swinging parallel as on modern automobiles. By this time most wipers also came two-to-a-car.

For drivers intent upon keeping an eye peeled over their shoulder, rear-window wipers became available in the 1940s and proved popular. No less an automobile magnate that Henry Ford had one on his 1942 Ford V-8 sedan.

Still, for all this innovation, windshield wipers were primitive metal stalks waving in the breeze. Wipers powered by vacuum motors suffered from the disadvantage that their motors shut down during rapid acceleration. This drawback was overcome by the use of electric-powered wipers beginning on a large scale in the 1950s.■

Wax, cleaner: annual rituals

On the first warm weekend each spring, auto stores do a brisk business with car cleaner and wax. Sprucing up the family car is a spring ritual as American as the Indianapolis 500.

If you are about to tackle some seasonal car cleaning, watch for parking lot nicks and scratches, especially where bare metal shows, the Car Care Council says. Rust spreads at an alarming rate, so touching up those spots is a good idea any time they show up.

Cleaning and waxing the car can give it a new lease on life. The finish may have been subjected to any one or all of its worst enemies; air pollution, industrial fall-out, road salt, ocean spray, tree sap and/or bird droppings. The latter is especially hard on paint because it contains a high percentage of tannic acid.

Some new cars are less vulnerable to all of the above. They are factory finished with a two-step process that provides an extra layer of protection on top of the base coat.■

Fuel economy still important to buyers

Even though gasoline prices are lower than they were a few years ago, it is prudent to continue to concern for fuel economy.

Every penny or dollar saved by conserving gasoline means a little more you can spend on that vacation or weekend trip. Champion Spark Plug Company offers eight tips to improve your fuel economy while driving this year.

1. Keep engine in tune. This is one of the most important ways to save gasoline in automobiles. Be aware of the tune-up schedule in your owner's manual, and always be ready to give the car needed service whenever performance drops or fuel economy begins to decline. Check miles per gallon with every tankful so you know when mileage is decreasing.

2. Start up slowly. Don't race the engine when starting. Accelerate slowly, evenly. The jackrabbit may have started fast, but he lost the race!

3. Travel at slower speed. In favor of better gas mileage? Raise your right foot! Above 55 mph, fuel consumption skyrockets. You'll get 20 percent more miles per gallon at 55 mph than at 70. Hold steady speeds when possible; varying speeds make poorer gas mileage.

4. Brake slowly. Coast up to a red light, if possible, then apply brakes as needed. This uses no extra fuel, while keeping your foot on the accelerator does. Tailgating means frequent braking, more fuel waste – and it's dangerous. Back off and save.

5. Don't stay idle. Idle cars, like hands, do the devil's work. The average American car consumes a cup of gas for every six minutes idling time. Letting your car idle for more than a minute uses more gas than restarting it. Think of this a drive-up windows to banks or fast-food restaurants or while waiting for a train.

6. Watch those gears. More gas is used in lower gears. For manual transmissions; run through lower gears gently and quickly, build up speed in higher gears. For automatic transmissions; apply enough gas pedal pressure to get car going, pick up speed as soon as transmission eases into higher gear.

7. Check up every gas-up. At each gas-up you should check for properly inflated tires (important to conserving fuel), motor oil and transmission fluid levels. These are all necessary for keeping your car in better mileage condition.

8. Limit air conditioning. Use only when necessary. High gas costs can make you hot under the collar, too. Air conditioning can reduce fuel economy by as much as 2.5 miles per gallon. ■

Fuel injection creates a new-car concern

New car shopping takes somewhat more savvy than it did a generation ago. In a more technically oriented society, car buyers are looking for features that were rare, if available at all, as recently as 10 years ago.

Among these is fuel injection, the state-of-the-art method of delivering fuel to the engine. Traditionally, this has been done by the carburetor, basically an atomizer that mixes fuel and air and sends it to the cylinders via the intake manifold.

Fuel injection is a technique that has been in use for many years on race cars and other high-performance engines. However, demands for improved fuel economy and reduced exhaust emissions have cast fuel injection into the automotive limelight. Fortunately, electronic and computer technology make it a much more dependable system than in the past.

Basically, there are two types of fuel injection one might encounter on new cars: throttle body (TBI), where the injectors are in the area once occupied by the carburetor and direct port injection, where fuel enters the cylinder at the intake valve. The intake manifold carries only air.

In either case the throttle controls only the flow of air into the engine; the injectors provide a spray of pressurized fuel, precisely measured via computer, for correct fuel/air mixture under prevailing conditions (starting, idle, acceleration and so forth).

The benefits: more precise fuel/air mixture, delivered in correct proportions to each cylinder. Combustion is improved, better engine performance, fuel economy and exhaust emissions are the net result.

An important factor to remember about fuel injection: Clean fuel is essential. Owners of vehicles so equipped are advised to use good-quality gasoline and to replace the fuel filter as recommended by the car maker.

One service problem created by fuel injection is a clogging of the injectors, which leads to poor starting, weak and uncertain operation and poor acceleration. Deposits can form at the fuel injector's tiny circular opening, which is about the width of a human hair, restricting the fuel flow and causing gasoline to feed as a ragged stream instead of a fine mist.

Correcting the problem can be as easy as a few tankfuls of premium gasoline. Numerous oil companies have been advertising that their premium grade fuel contains detergents to clean fuel injectors. After the injectors are clean, switch back to a regular gasoline. ■

Take care of your car today so it won't fall to pieces tomorrow!

Autos filled with firsts

The history of the automobile industry is filled with "firsts" - some remembered and others forgotten. Some of the latter, compiled by the Automotive Information Council include:

The first independent automotive dealership was established in 1898 by Detroit William Metzger. That was two years after Duryea Motor Wagon Company made more than one car from the same design.

The first auto parts and supply business was opened in 1899 in St. Louis, Mo.

The first woman to receive a driver's license was Mrs. John Howell Phillips of Chicago in 1899.

President William McKinley, in 1900, was the first U.S. president to ride in an automobile.

The first car to be reported stolen was in 1905 in St. Louis.

The first used car dealership opened in 1902 in New York City.

The world's first parking meter appeared in Oklahoma City in 1935, and the first drive-in bank opened in South Bend, Ind. in 1936. There is apparently no connection between the two events. ■

'Severe drivers' won't admit it

Are you a "severe driver?"

The Road Ahead publication explains that if you frequently operate your vehicle under severe driving conditions, as outlined in your owner's manual, then the answer is "yes." It is important that each motorist understand the difference between normal and severe driving in order to follow the correct scheduled maintenance procedures for your vehicle.

Who are severe drivers? Although most people would not consider themselves in that category, the Filter Council said that only about 20 percent of all cars are regularly driven under "normal" conditions; i.e., highway driving for extended periods of time. That means that 80 percent of all cars are operated under abnormal or "severe" conditions.

According to Road Ahead, frequently taking short trips of less than four miles, particularly in cold weather, is one of the most common forms of severe driving. If you operate your car under this condition, and seldom do any highway driving, be sure to change your oil often. Refer to your owner's manual for recommendations on engine oil changes. Typically, a three-month/3,000-mile interval is recommended for gasoline engines in cases of severe driving.

Examples listed

Other cases of severe driving cited by the publication include:

- Idling for long periods of time, such as stop-and-go driving in heavy traffic. Many cars are subjected to this type of driving in rush hour twice each day.
- Sustained highway driving in hot weather, such as occurs during vacation travel.
- Carrying heavy objects on a rooftop rack or towing a trailer or boat.
- Driving in dusty conditions, such as over dirt or gravel roads or where sand or volcanic ash is blowing.
- Prolonged operation at sub-zero temperatures.
- Driving on steep hills or mountains on a regular basis.

By performing routine maintenance at scheduled intervals that take into account whether you are a normal or severe driver, you will operate your car more safely and economically, the Road Ahead publication stated. These precautions will also keep your vehicle properly maintained to qualify for warranties and special motor company repair policies. ■

Prepare for a vacation with vehicle check list

Will it overheat?

- ☐ Check hoses. They should be firm, but flexible with no cracks, bulges or soft spots. Check connections for leaks.
- ☐ Check belts. When pushed with a finger, they should not "give" more than one-half inch. They should show no signs of fraying, wear or age.
- ☐ Check radiator coolant. (Do not remove radiator cap.) The recovery tank should be filled to "cold" mark.
- ☐ Check pressure. Test cooling system with pressure to determine if there are any leaks.
- ☐ Check radiator cap. It must hold pressure.

Will it keep you cool?

- ☐ Check air conditioner. If it is not working effectively, it may need a shot of freon.

Will the tires survive?

- ☐ Check tire pressure. Owner's manual will give proper tire pressure for your car.
- ☐ Check condition of all tires. There should be no excessive wear, cuts or other abrasions.
- ☐ Check spare tire. The pressure and condition are important too.
- ☐ Check spark plugs. If they are worn or have dirty deposits on firing end, replace them. Check gap on each to determine if it meets your car specifications.

- ☐ Check air filter and PCV valve. Hold filter up to sunlight; if light can't be seen through, replace it; PCV valve also requires periodic replacement.
- ☐ Clean and adjust the automatic choke, if equipped.
- ☐ Tune up the engine. This includes inspection of points (if equipped), ignition wires and distributor cap and adjustment of timing and carburetor idle settings.
- ☐ Are its inner workings lubricated?
- ☐ Check oil. Examine dipstick and fill if necessary. Change oil at mileage listed in owner's manual.
- ☐ Replace oil filter, when recommended in owner's manual.
- ☐ Check transmission fluid. Check level when engine is running and warm and gearshift is in park.

Is it safe?

- ☐ Check brake fluid. Fluid should be 1/4-inch from top of reservoir.
- ☐ Check brakes. Examine brake linings, pads, drums, discs, etc., for wear or degradation.
- ☐ Check all lights. Headlights (low and high beam), tail lights, brake lights, parking lights, instrument panel lights and all turn signal lights must be functioning.
- ☐ Check horn. ■
